COURSE OVERVIEW	This food allergy awareness training course is designed to provide food handlers, or those with responsibility for managing food handlers, with an awareness around the controls and legal responsibilities when it comes to the 14 regulated allergens. Food businesses have a legal responsibility to ensure that the food they manufacture, produce, sell or serve is safe for the consumer to eat. The course is accredited by Allergy UK and meets all entry requirements for recognition on their Allergy Aware Scheme.
COURSE CONTENT	• Introduction to food allergens • Allergies, intolerances and coeliac disease • Symptoms of allergic reactions and how to respond • Allergens legislation • Food labelling requirements • The 14 regulated allergens • 'Free from' claims • Managing allergens from purchase to service • Providing allergen information to customers
WHO IT IS AIMED AT?	The e-learning's Introduction to Allergens training course is suitable for food handlers and managers working with food types. From production and manufacturing through to the sale and serving of food, the course will provide an awareness of best practice when it comes to allergens and their control. It also meets the entry requirements for catering businesses looking to join the Allergy Aware Scheme run by Allergy UK.
COURSE DURATION	The course will typically take 2 to 3 hours to complete, however as this allergy training is hosted online, learners can complete each module at a time and pace to suit them.
TEST/CERTIFICATION	The course is assessed by multiple-choice questions at the end of the course. Learners must score 100% in order to pass. If the learner does not achieve 100% first time, they will be taken back to review the module with which they have struggled. They can then retry the multiple-choice questions as many times as necessary to pass the course. Please note: this course does not provide a qualification itself but does meet mandatory training requirements. If you wish to achieve a recognised allergen qualification you must sit an exam with a recognised training provider (you can still use the e-learning as the knowledge element of the training).
